

The magnetic trackers and calibration modules implemented in the helmet-mounted cueing systems for Polish military helicopters

A. Szelmanowski,¹ S. Michalak,¹ A. Pazur,¹ P. Janik,¹ and W. Paterek¹

¹*Air Force Institute of Technology,
ul. Ks. Bolesława 6, 01-494 Warsaw, Poland*

In the paper there are presented selected magnetic phenomena implementations in the scope of helmet attitude and heading tracking systems relatively to the aircraft body (magnetic trackers) and magnetic heading errors compensation systems (magnetic deviation) utilized in the helmet-mounted cueing systems.

References:

- [1] Z. Gosiewski, A. Ortyl - Inertial systems algorithms for space orientation of moving objects, Institute of Aviation, Warsaw (1999)
- [2] A. Szelmanowski, A. Pazur, P. Janik, Helmet mounted display systems from the optoelectric surveillance systems for civil and military SAR/CSAR helicopters, AFIT works nr 369/43/16 (2016).
- [3] Rush C., Helmet display in aviation. Helmet mounted display. Design issues for rotary-wing aircraft, USA, Fort Rucker (2009).

This work was supported by the project no. 0-5599-43 in research@developed works realised in Department dor Avionics of the Air Force Institute of Technology in 2016.